Description Space of Love magazine (SOL magazine) was publishing from September 2008 to November 2012 (13 issues) as a source of news and views, a space of inspiration and a guide in co-creating a Global Space of Love.

It was inspired by the incredible wisdom and vision of a young, beautiful recluse living in the wild of the Siberian Taiga, Anastasia, and a courageous business-man-turned-author, Vladimir Megre.

The mission was to share writings and ideas which help humanity to transform the inspiring vision of a planet full of literal and metaphoric Spaces of Love into millions of small plots of self-sustaining Family Food Gardens, little paradises, all over the planet.

Covering wide range of vitally important topics, from Eco-village living and Permaculture to forgotten ancestral knowledge and non-conventional education, most of the articles of the magazine are timeless and still relevant to eco-village, off the grid and sustainability communities, as well as those engaged in spiritual development and alternative education.
